6 We're slightly mad for textiles here at QH, and our current pick for spring style is the range of napkins, tableware and cushions from Australian textile house Materialistic. Designer Angie McCarthy creates 'lovely stuff you just have to have'! She has the sweetest range of original hand screen-printed pieces for the home in bright and bold colourways that are blooming lovely. You can view and purchase pieces from the range at www.materialistic.com.au

7 Yes, we are the type to go ga-ga over the perfect contours and smooth finish of a really well designed chair!! And we see a lot in our line of work - our current two droolers are the stackable Slab chair from the latest collection of British designer Tom Dixon which debuted at this year's Milan Design Week, and the sublime Hiroshima chair from Japanese chair connoisseurs Next Maruni. Well we can always admire from afar! www.tomdixon.net / www.nextmaruni.com

5 Being spring we're looking to all things pretty for inspiration, so when we spotted the delightful Bouquet Chair by designer Tokujin Yoshioka for Moroso we were thoroughly intrigued. The Bouquet is an evolution of the designer's Tissue Installation of 2007, and the new interpretation was a star design at the Salone Internazionale del Mobile in Milan in April this year, with its extraordinary 'bouquet' of fabric squares creating a lush bloom that is almost too pretty to sit on! www.moroso.it
